

Blessed July from Wilsonville,

As spring changed into summer, so seasons are changing in my life. I'm not yet sure how to name my 'season', but change is definitely 'in the air.' Lord willing, I will know much more next month! However, now I just covet your love, support and prayers.

During the last three months many people have visited, had a meal, or stayed for up to three weeks and then moved on. It has been a very busy time in many ways.

Two young mothers from Belarus

(between Poland, Russia and Ukraine) were with me for three weeks while training in a government program in Portland before they returned home to help orchestrate similar activities there. They were a delight and I miss them. They were part of a group of eleven women, but the only Christians. I was honored to host them.

My cousin from Raymond,

Washington, was recently here for almost a week. She does not drive, so I was her chauffer, visiting friends and relatives while she was here. Ella was waiting for an ultra sound to prove that the lumps under her arms were really gone. We prayed God would remove them and I feel God answered and did HIS miracle. We have yet to hear the final results.

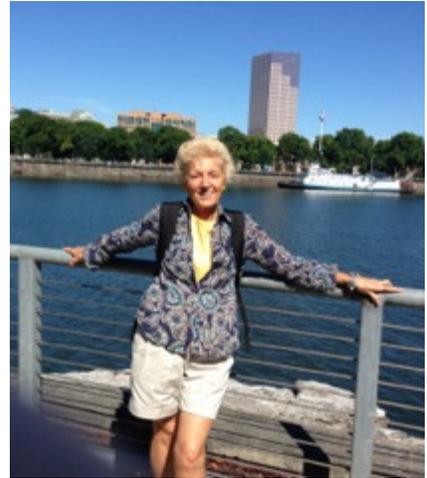

Various ministry couples popped by for a meal. One was from OMS and others were from the Northwest. Former students, teachers and neighbors have dropped by.

Along with meeting neighbors I participate in two water aerobic classes and a walking group as well as Bible studies. I have found a church and enjoy great fellowship and participate in various activities and Bible studies. I even volunteer at the local library. I am not bored. ☺

I had a wonderful Mother's Day lunch with Daron's family. My grandchildren are growing into adults. Where has the time gone? Children just don't stay small very long.

Attending my 50th reunion at Seattle

Pacific University was also a great blessing. It was a joy to meet together again and renew old friendships. We all look a bit different, surprise! ☺ Again, Where has the time gone?

My yard has taken far more time than I ever imagined. But, this is one area that progress is evident. I am thrilled.

I also have continued the website that I started in the spring. I try to write 4 - 5 times a week. I have so much to learn, but I am trying. If you would like to know a bit more about what is going on in my life, check it out - www.bonniesteinborn.com. I am also on Face Book: Bonnie Steinborn

As I said before, change is in the air, but at the moment I am not sure which doors are closing and which one are opening. It is a time of waiting on HIM! I covet your prayers. I know God is in control and is walking with me each step of the way. PTL!

I am asking that this season is bringing you and yours peace and joy as we walking together in HIS SONlight -

For the only cause that matters, EVER,
